

Raccoons

By Hannah

Appearance

Raccoons have rings on their tails. They have gray and black fur like cats.

Habitat and Diet

Raccoons eat frogs and make dens in hollow trees in the wild. In the city they eat garbage and food that people leave for their pets.

Life Cycle

A mating season starts in January. About 2 months after mating, a female gives birth to 4 to 6 babies. Baby raccoons can stand at 6 weeks old.

Adaptations

One of raccoons' favorites are frog eggs. Other things are yummy such as crayfish, garden snakes, corn, fruits and nuts.

Interesting Facts

Raccoons are nocturnal. They live in Mexico, Canada, South America, and the United States. There are even some in the Rocky Mountains.

Bibliography

Dingwall, Laima. Raccoons. Grolier Educational Corporation. 1986.

Curbed. http://curbed.com/archives/2006/05/19/urban_wildlife_update_south_brooklyn_raccoons.php. 2008.